

Satellite radio offers the best variety available for the areas that can only support a small radio market. I don't feel they compete with the local radio stations as they don't provide local information and local news. These companies have built a program that gives the public what they want, and it would be wrong to penalize them for this.

If local radio stations want to compete, then compete!!

What would be next, limited access to CD music when the radio stations discover that people are listening to what they want rather than what the radio station wants to sell
